

RISK DISCLOSURE

Introduction

Performance Ronnaru Company Ltd (referred to as the “Company”, “we”, “us”, “PRC”), Is a Cyprus Investment Firm authorized and regulated by Cyprus Securities and Exchange Commission under license number 253/14.

Following the implementation of the second Markets in Financial Instruments Directive (MiFID II) in the European Union and in accordance with the Investment Services and Activities and Regulated Markets Law of 2017 (Cyprus Law 87(I)/2017) as this is amended from time to time, the Company provide its Clients with a Risk Disclosure.

The client (referred to as “You”, the “client”) should read the notice as the present disclosure forms part of the “Service Agreement”. By entering into the “Service Agreement” with the Company, Clients also agree to the disclosure terms, as set out in this document.

Trading CFDs is not appropriate for all persons. Under no circumstances, you should risk more than you are able to lose. This notice cannot and does not disclose or explain all of the risks and other significant aspects involved in trading CFDs or other financial derivative products.

Contracts for Differences “CFDs”

Trading in Contracts for Difference (“CFDs”) is SPECULATIVE AND RISKY and is not suitable for all members of the general public but only for those investors who:

- (a) understand and are willing to assume the economic, legal and other risks involved.
- (b) taking into account their personal financial circumstances, financial resources, life style and obligations are financially able to assume the loss of their entire investment.
- (c) have knowledge to understand CFDs trading and the Underlying assets and Markets.

The CFD available for trading with the Company are non-deliverable spot transactions between a buyer and a seller to exchange the difference between the current price of an Underlying Asset (currencies, commodities, spot crude oil, spot gold). If the Underlying Asset movement is in the Client’s favor, the Client may achieve a profit, but an equally small adverse market movement can quickly result in the loss of the Clients’ entire deposit.

CFDs are complex instruments and come with high risk of losing your money. You should consider whether you understand how CFD’s work and whether you can afford to take the risk of losing all the invested capital. Do not invest money you cannot afford to lose.

Leverage, Margin and Stop Out Levels

Trading CFD’s enables you to use leverage to open a trade by depositing a fraction of the total trade value; this means that relatively small market movement may lead to a proportionality much larger movement in the value of your trade.

Financial markets may fluctuate rapidly, and prices will become volatile. The Client must consider that if the market moves against the Client, the Client may sustain a total loss of the capital invested. You are responsible for all the risks, and you are responsible to monitor the required margin of your open positions and in order to avoid a stop-out.

The Company applies a margin close out rule on a per account basis. The rule standardizes the percentage of margin no lower than 50% of minimum required margin. The Company will close out one or more client's open positions on CFDs at 70% of the margin used.

Off-exchange transactions

When the client trades CFDs with the Company, the client will be entering into an off-exchange ("OTC") derivative transaction, by placing his orders through the Company's trading platform. OTC transactions may involve greater risk than investing in on-exchange derivatives because there is no exchange market on which to close out an open position. The client needs to open and close a position with the Company that is not transferable to any other person. In his case, the client may be exposed to the risk of the Company's default.

Liquidity

Some of the Underlying Assets may not become immediately liquid as a result of reduced demand for the Underlying Asset and Client may not be able to obtain the information on the value of these or the extent of the associated risks.

Client Funds

When holding client funds on behalf of a client, the Company ensures to promptly place any client money it receives into one or more denoted clients' accounts which are segregated from the Company's own accounts.

Client money are always segregated from the Company's own money and cannot be used in the course of its business.

Eligible Counterparties should be aware that the right to the Investor Compensation Fund is not available.

Complex Instruments Warning

This notice cannot disclose all the risks and other significant aspects of complex instruments.

Derivative financial instruments are complex products for which special risks apply.

You should not deal with complex instruments unless you understand their nature and your exposure to risk.

You should be satisfied that the product is suitable for you in the light of your circumstances and financial position.

Different instruments involve different levels of exposure to risk and in deciding whether to trade in such instruments you should first make acquainted yourself with the risks associated with the investments.
